Craft Corner

Paper Snails

These cuties are the perfect heart-shaped craft for Valentine's Day. They make great companions to cards and adorable keepsakes to cherish. Kids can perform every step of this craft, although younger children may need some assistance.

Materials

- 2 strips of cardboard (about 1 inch or 2½ centimeters wide)
- 2 strips of colored paper (about 1 inch or 2½ centimeters wide)
- Nontoxic glue
- 2 pairs of googly eyes
- Washable felt-tip pen
- Child-safe scissors

Directions

Cut a small rectangle from one of the short ends of a cardboard strip. The rectangle should be thinner than the strip, leaving two prongs on either side (see the header image above). These will be the snail's eye stalks. (Young children may need an adult's help with this step.)

Fold the cardboard strip in half to create the snail's L-shaped body.

Make two cuts on the long sides of a strip of colored paper. The cuts should be about 1 inch (2½ centimeters) from the strip's short edges and half the paper's width. The top cut must begin on the left side of the strip while the bottom cut begins on the right.

Fold the colored paper in half, then insert the two cuts into one another to create a loop. You should end up with a shape that looks like a fish with a tail.

Push the fold opposite the "fishtail" inward so the paper looks like a heart (see image above). Use glue to secure the point of the heart shape in place.

Attach the heart to the bottom half of the snail's body by folding the two prongs of the "fishtail" outwards and gluing them in place (see image above). Glue the googly eyes onto the eye stalks.

Finally, use a felt-tip pen to draw a friendly smile on the snail's face.

Repeat this process with the second piece of cardboard and paper strips. You've created an adorable pair of handmade snail sweethearts!

February's Family of the Month – The Armstrong's

We are the Armstrongs! We have been in the Woodforest area for almost 2 years now. We moved from Ohio so we could be closer to the grandparents. We enjoy cookies, being/playing outside, and fishing. Basically everything a toddler could love!
