Looking Back at April

Learning that happens in and out of the classroom, celebrating diversity, building friendships, making memories, and having fun during it all is the best way to learn!

Parent Reminders:

- For safety reasons, children must wear closed toe and closed heel shoes. Flipflops and sandals are not permitted. Crocs are strongly discouraged.
- Toys are to be left at home. Your child will have plenty of activities to keep them engaged.
- Please make sure that you are checking your child in and out every day at drop off and pick up through the Procure app. You just scan the QR code on the lobby glass by the entrance door or use the curbside contactless (GPS) sign in/out.
- Please keep at least 2 changes of clothes in your child's cubby in case of a messy activity or potty accident. Please label all belongings.
- All sippy cups and refillable water bottles must be labeled and taken home each day to be washed and prevent bacteria growth.
- If you are providing meals/snacks for your child, they may not contain any nuts or nut/peanut product.
- Handicap parking spaces are not to be used unless you have a disabled license plate or placard.

Meet Sedrick the Seal: Encouraging Kindness at Home

By Dr. Kristi Smith, D.Ed., M.Ed.

At Children's Lighthouse Franchise Company, we believe that character development is just as important as academic learning. One of the core values we emphasize is kindness, and who better to help teach this lesson than Sedrick the Seal, one of our beloved Character Value Friends™! He is more than just a fun character—he's a role model for young learners. Through our Character Value Enrichment Unit where Sedrick is featured in May, storytelling, interactive lessons, and classroom activities, our proprietary curriculums at Children's Lighthouse Early Learning Schools help children see kindness in action.

Sedrick the Seal: A Role Model for Kindness - Sedrick the Seal embodies the importance of being kind and caring, helping children learn that small acts of kindness can make a big difference in the world around them. Whether it's sharing with a friend, offering a helping hand, or using kind words, modeling kindness will help children of all ages to embrace kindness in their daily lives. One of the key messages Sedrick is used to teach is that kindness isn't just about words - it's about actions. Saying "please" and "thank you" is important, but so is comforting a friend who is feeling sad, helping a teacher clean up, or including someone who feels left out. These small but powerful gestures can create a lasting impact on a child's social and emotional growth.

Why Kindness Matters - Kindness is one of the most fundamental character traits a child can develop. It goes beyond simply being nice - it involves showing empathy, compassion, and respect for others. Teaching children kindness at an early age helps them form positive relationships, develop emotional intelligence, and create a more supportive and inclusive community.

When children understand kindness, they become more aware of their actions and words, recognizing how they impact others. This not only builds their people skills and confidence but also strengthens their ability to handle conflicts and challenges with grace and understanding.

How Parents Can Encourage Kindness at Home? - While the curriculum at Children's Lighthouse fosters kindness in the classroom, parents play a vital role in reinforcing these values at home. Here are some simple yet effective ways to encourage kindness in your child's everyday life:

- Model Kindness: Children learn by watching, so demonstrating kindness in your own actions is one of the best ways to teach them. Use kind words, show appreciation, and treat others with respect.
- Encourage Acts of Kindness: Praise your child when they show kindness, whether it's sharing with a sibling, helping a neighbor, or writing a thank-you note.
- Read Stories About Kindness: Books that highlight kind characters and positive actions can inspire children to follow in their footsteps.
- Practice Gratitude: We don't have to wait until November to teach the character values of thanks and gratitude. Gratitude is a big part of being kind! Help your child recognize and appreciate the kindness of others by encouraging them to express gratitude regularly.
- Role-Playing Scenarios: Act out different situations where your child can practice kindness, such as greeting a new friend, comforting someone who is sad, or resolving conflicts peacefully.

The Lasting Impact of Kindness - When children learn to be kind and caring, they build the foundation for a lifetime of positive relationships and personal growth. Through Sedrick the Seal, we inspire children to not only understand kindness but to put it into practice in meaningful ways. By working together—both in the classroom and at home—we can nurture a generation of compassionate, empathetic, and kind-hearted individuals.

Let's continue to spread kindness with Sedrick the Seal and celebrate the many ways our children make the world a better place, one kind act at a time!
