Ballester Family

There is so much we could say about your family, your love for Adam and Brian shows through them.

Their personalities and growth brings joy to the building everyday. Children's Lighthouse thanks you for supporting us and allowing us to be apart of your family!

Teacher of the Month

Mrs. Glenda! We appreciate you and the amazing food you provide for our school! You have a true passion for your job and everyone in the building adores you. Thank you for caring.

Teaching Gratitude

Work gratitude into your daily conversation.

Try to weave appreciation for mundane things into your everyday talks – statements such as, "We're so lucky to have a good cat like Sam!", "Aren't the colors in the sunset amazing?", "I'm so happy when you listen!". When you reinforce an idea frequently, it's more likely to stick. One way to turn up the gratitude in your house is to pick a "thanking" part of the day.

Have kids help

It happens to all of us: You give your child a chore, but it's too agonizing watching them

a) take forever to clear the table or

b) make a huge mess mixing the pancake batter.

The temptation is always to step in and do it yourself. But the more you do for them, the less they appreciate your efforts. By participating in simple household chores like feeding the dog or stacking dirty dishes on the counter, kids realize that all these things take effort.

Practice saying no

Of course kids ask for toys, video games, and candy -- sometimes on an hourly basis. It's difficult, if not impossible, to feel grateful when your every whim is granted. Saying no a lot makes saying yes that much sweeter.
